Foreword

Dear Readers:

We of the Rocket Staff who have departed as graduates of 1963 sincerely hope that we have fully and faithfully presented in this year's ROCKET all the cherished, happy times at Rochester High during the 1962-63 school term.

Most of us have been here for all four years of high school. We will always remember our favorite classmates, our favorite classes, and our extra-curricular activities. Now we must leave the security of school and enter an uncertain future. We will probably all be faced with many problems, but through this yearbook we hope to lighten our hearts by looking at fond memories.

We would like to express our appreciation to the members of the class of 1963, our teachers, and the residents of Rochester who have made this yearbook possible.

With pride we present to the future, our past:

THE ROCKET STAFF

To Mrs. Fairchild:

Mrs. Leach, the high school secretary, is a great asset to our school. Capable, efficient, courteous, dependable, pleasant, understanding, sympathetic, (and more than a little courageous). Every student should be grateful for the warm, friendly smile which assures us all of cheerful help from this wonderful person.

Our Class History

Our class entered the brand new high school in 1959 as the first freshman class. Because we were freshmen we made a lot of mistakes, but we had a lot of fun, too. To make money, we printed student directories which included the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of all students, faculty members, and school personnel. What a headache those were! Our first class party, a record hop, was a huge success. The freshman sponsors, Mrs. Fairchild and Mr. Rolens, were a great help to our baby class. Leading us were: Lee Hummerickhouse, president; Judy Halm, vice-president; Connie Beaver, Secretary; David Churchill, treasurer; and Richard Ramsey and Chris Nonamaker, reporters.

As sophomores we were older, of course, and thus much wiser. Again we had a record hop, but instead of engaging a disc jockey from Springfield, we enlisted the help of Rochester's own D. J. - "Daddy-o" Jackson. To make money, we sold peanut butter candy in tins and chocolate candy bars. Our sponsors for the year were Mrs. Fairchild, and Mr. Rolens. Officers included: Connie Beaver, president; Joe Mattingley, vice-president; Karen Tyrrell, secretary; Judy Halm, treasurer; and Candie Mason, Kaaren Bunger, reporters.

The prom was the only thing on our minds when we were juniors. Every spare minute was devoted to planning, ordering, decorating, and, most important, making money for the prom. Like all juniors in the past, we sold magazines. Writers cramp struck many of us after filling out those seemingly endless subscription forms. But all the work was justified when we turned out the best prom that Rochester had ever seen. (That's how we felt anyway.) Sponsors for the year were Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Richman, and Mr. Wall. The class was in the hands of: Joe Mattingley, president; Judy Halm, vice-president; Kaaren Bunger, secretary; Richard Ramsey, treasurer; and Sue Evans, reporter.

Senior year was completely filled with preparations for the yearbook and plans for graduation. Senior Day was a big event in the life of our class. We all went to Springfield one October morning to have our pictures taken at Anker Studios, ate lunch together, and then enjoyed THE VIKINGS and TRAPEZE in the afternoon. As seniors, it was our responsibility to plan the annual junior-senior picnic. Our sponsors, old friends by this time, were Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Richman, and Mr. Wall. Class officers for our final year at R.H.S. were: Richard Ransey, president; Judy Halm, vice-president; Susan Grannis, secretary; and Sue Evans, treasurer.
